TERRAZAS MAKES AN APPEAL FOR VOLUNTEERS

against these persons and their property.

"The only remedy to avoid grave things is to form a corps of rural police, who, well armed and equipped, working with activity and constancy, can in a short time destroy the gang of bandits, thereby reestablishing tranquility in the country and assuring to all the peaceful and laboring inhabitants the guarantees which they merit and which they need to pursue their labors."

"The account of the state with the moneyed interests is sufficient for the sustenance of these rural forces and I seek solely the assistance of the citizens who love order and progress to enlist and present to the government the end all private necessities for the formation of the rural corps."

"Therefore I call upon all Chihuahuans of good will, to those who, knowing their duties as citizens and patriots, they know that the only form by which it is possible to succeed is by the method of the union. To those that understand that only the legally constituted government is able to give all kinds of guarantees to the property, to the lives of the inhabitants and to the honor of the families; and I request that all these will present to the political authorities of the various towns a manifestation of their disposition to facilitate by the personal aid in all matters and will be repaid justly for the service they give."

"I have absolute confidence in the noble and elevating sentiments of the Chihuahuan people who have always been disposed to maintain the order of its institutions, who have shed their blood defending our principles rigorously and who have not stopped at any sacrifice to aid the authorities when they required their help for the purpose of sustaining a just cause. I have absolute confidence and I hope with faith that they will respond to this call for the reestablishment of order for the guarantee of all interests of society and for the ideal of which the state of Chihuahua has been working with peace and tranquility, that it may be possible to continue with progress. In this manner we may serve not only the state of Chihuahua but the entire republic, the fatherland of which we form a part as do all Mexicans."

WILFLEY ON THE MEXICAN TROUBLE

Says It Is Men Diaz Has Educated Who Now
Oppose Him.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—The revolution in Mexico is a frequent subject of discussion in the national capital both in the press and in public in a public address, Judge L. R. Wilfley, who was attorney general of the Philippines when president Taft was governor, declared that the unrest in Mexico at present is not a protest against the Diaz administration, but is caused by the fact that the people are uncertain as to the successor of Diaz.

"The Mexican people can cope with the problem of selecting Diaz's successor," said Judge Wilfley, "by choosing a man who is popular throughout the country and can control the army. The party that opposes Diaz is composed of the young men, whose education and consequent interest in the government is the result of the schools Diaz built. Their desire is for greater power in the municipalities and this will be given them as soon as they have shown themselves able to bear the responsibilities incident to self rule."

"Concerning the revolutions themselves," said the judge, "it is found that they are uniformly local in scope and action. The principal activities have been in Chihuahua, and are the outgrowth of long-standing dissatisfaction with municipal conditions there. Lack of organization, of leadership and money are the reasons why no national revolution can take place. There is a party opposing the Diaz administration, but it is disintegrated. It is without a recognized head. The people are waiting for a man who will carry on the government as Diaz has done."

FIFTY COMING TO JOIN INSURRECTOS

Mexicans Leave Railroad
Work in Missouri To Take Part in the Insurrection.

St. Joseph, Mo., Dec. 28.—Fifty Mexican laborers who have been employed by the Burlington railroad here, left last night for Chihuahua, Mexico, in company of two of their countrymen, said to be agents of the insurrection. Members of the party said they were going to join the revolutionary forces.

Knew What He Wanted.

"Gimme a dime's wuth o' dried beef an' sum crackers," said Uncle Josh to the young lady in charge of the ribbon counter in a downtown store.

"You have evidently made a mistake in the place," she smilingly replied. "This is a dry goods store."

"Waal, now, I reckon I know'd that 'gosh," said the old man, "an' ei dried beef an' crackers hain't dry goods then I'd like to know what in tarnation you'd call 'em?"—Chicago News.

ICEBERGS.

How Those Found in the North Atlantic Are Formed.

The distance covered by an iceberg of the north Atlantic from the time it is formed until it reaches the banks is fully 2,500 miles. It may have been afloat for a year, exposed to wide changes of temperature, battered by ice floes, possibly other bergs and ceaselessly washed by the waves. Yet some of those seen 2,000 miles south of their starting point are nearly 300 feet in height and truly of majestic proportions, often 1,000 or more feet in length, while it is an established scientific fact that so much more of the bulk is under water than is visible that the largest bergs may extend into the ocean to a depth of over half a mile.

Their enormous size when they become detached from the glaciers is proved by the observations of explorers along the Greenland coast. A few years ago a berg was measured as nearly as possible around the edges. This distance was about five miles. It had several peaks estimated to range from 300 to 500 feet high. Judging from its appearance, it was a solid mass that had separated in its entirety from the glacial edge of Greenland.

As arctic navigators who venture far north often see a score or more of great bergs in a day, the tremendous glacial activity in this region can be appreciated. The majority of these that drift to the Grand banks come from Melville bay. Some of the distinct glaciers that terminate the Greenland ice cap on this coast extend along it a distance of fully twenty-five miles. Their thickness or height can only be estimated, but in places near the open sea it is believed to be several hundred feet.

Recent examinations of this coast show that during the short summer the formation of bergs in the bay is almost continuous. The glacial movement keeps pressing the ice forward until a thick stratum often projects many feet beyond that beneath. After a time the great weight overcomes the tensile strength of the mass and it falls into the sea, and a berg is created.—Day Allen Willey in Scientific American.

A Frog's Nest.

In Brazil a species of tree frog constructs in the water a curious nest, or fortification, to protect its eggs and young from the attacks of fish. Starting at the bottom of a pond, the mother frog erects a circular, tubelike wall of mud which at the top projects above the surface of the water. In the water thus inclosed the eggs are laid, and when they have hatched out the frog's young are secure from enemies until they are able to take care of themselves.

Puppies Both.

"I would give half my fortune to be in your little dog's place," said a "smart" young man in a railway carriage to a girl who had a toy terrier in her arms.

"And it would be the right place for you," she retorted, "for I am taking him to have his ears cropped!"—London Express.

A Natural Inference.

"Matrimony," said the lady who had just secured her third divorce, "is, after all, an uncharted sea." "I take it, then," her friend replied, "that you have not engaged in your various ventures for charting purposes."—Chicago Record-Herald.
